Bradley Commission Recommends Halting Non-Service Connected Aid

Group's Report Braves Wrath of Veteran Groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special presidential commission recommended today that the government halt special aid to veterans whose ailments and disabilities have no connection with their military service.

The top-level commission said in its report to President Eisenhower that more help should be given to ex-GI's who were badly disabled in uniform or whose disabilities result directly from their service to their country.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, World War II hero and former veterans administrator who headed the commission, was called before the House Veterans Committee to explain its proposals.

The commission braved the wrath of the big veterans organizations with its recommended crackdown on non-service connected benefits. It ran head-on into a fast-moving drive by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars to establish what would amount to a general service pension based on age and a liberalized test of need.

Without referring to these organizations by name, the commission said the general pension proposal would be "nationalized," leading to a "tremendous" increase in veterans cost.

In view of expanded Social Security coverage, it said, ex-GI's with non-service disabilities should be considered in the same category as other citizens and their pensions and other benefits should be "minimized and gradually eliminated."

The commission was appointed by Mr. Eisenhower last year to look into the benefits granted the nation's 22 million veterans. The President pointed out in his January budget message that costs are increasing and nearly half the population potentially is entitled to benefits of some kind.

In a statement today, the VFW called this recommendation "highly objectionable" and said it should be "denounced by all veterans." The VFW also said it was "disappointed" that the commission gave no special consideration to pensions for World War I veterans 65 or over.

The American Veterans Committee called the commission's proposals "a magnificent contribution to bringing sanity and realism" to the nation's veterans programs.

National Commander J. Addison Wagner of the American Legion said "the recommendations appear to be based upon a composite of fact and theory which warrant the most careful study and interpretation."

"We are now evaluating the Bradley commission recommendations," he added. "A report will be made to the national executive committee of the American Legion, meeting at Indianapolis, Ind., next week."

Fire Department Nips Uptown Garage Blaze

Quick Action
Probably Averts
Disastrous Fire

The city fire department early yesterday nipped what could have been a disastrous uptown fire when firemen extinguished a blaze gaining big headway in the Orval Dean garage building at 16 South Jackson street.

The department also was called to a fire Saturday night which resulted in the arrest of a person who will be questioned in connection with the origin of the blaze. This fire destroyed a one-room dwelling at 109 South Capital and arrested by city police and turned over to the county was Harold Parks of Harrisburg.

The uptown blaze was spotted at 4:40 a. m. and Lawrence Logsdon, on fire duty at the city hall, sped to the building, which is owned by Mrs. Mae Thomas.

Logsdon broke out a window glass and entered the building carrying a hose. He knocked out the blaze before valuable equipment was damaged.

Logsdon said that when he arrived the building was afire along the north eave and the flames had spread across the rafters inside. He hurriedly got the big new truck's booster tank into operation and started knocking out the fire.

Other firemen, began arriving and Dean's truck and other equipment including a number of huge new tires mounted on wheels were moved out of the building. Two automobiles also were pushed outside.

Fire Chief L. G. Martin said all the damage was confined to the building. He said the fire apparently had started from a rubbish pile up against the north side of the brick building. The flames apparently climbed the brick wall and ignited the north eave, he stated.

The dwelling fire at 109 South Capital destroyed a building owned by Lillian Emery of Detroit, sister of Parks, and occupied by Jimmy Hargraves. The building was in flames when the fire department arrived at 8:40 p. m. and it and its contents were destroyed.

Chief of Police Ross Lane said Parks was arrested after Hargraves told him he had been warned by Parks he'd better get his clothing out, because he was going to burn the building.

A fireman said he saw Parks, while the building was burning, kick out a door at a brick tile house immediately to the north where Hargraves had gone.

Deputy Fire Marshal Dove Robinson of Eldorado was being called into the case today.

Fire Chief Martin said the truck made another run Saturday night, at 7:20 to 405 East Raymond avenue. There a car had run over an old installation where gasoline pumps formerly had been and had punctured its gasoline tank. Firemen washed off the area where gasoline spilled.

Youth Council Elects Officers

The Harrisburg Youth Council met Thursday night at the Eagles lodge to elect officers for 1956-1957.

Chuck Ford, president of the Junior board, introduced his fellow officers as follows: Vice president, Joan Seright; secretary, Michael Foster; treasurer, Herby Parks. Mrs. Joseph M. Hart, chairman of the Senior Nominating committee, submitted the following candidates:

President, Mrs. Carl Rude; vice president, Mrs. George Barnes; secretary, Mrs. Bob Rushing; treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Bottomley. The Senior board accepted the report of the nominating committee by acclamation.

John Foster, delegate from the Rotary club, donated candid shots of teenagers and scenes of local interest to the Youth Center and announced that they will be hung on the walls of the lounge.

The treasurer's books were turned over to the auditing committee which is composed of Mrs. L. B. Kimmel, Mrs. C. W. Whitley and Mrs. Joseph M. Hart. Following the audit they will be given to the new treasurer, Mrs. J. A. Bottomley.

The age group for members of the teen town as stated in the constitution was amended to include 15-year-olds. Plans were announced for a Freshman - Sophomore "Sack-Hop" to be held on a regular opening night, Friday, May 18. The committee, composed of the Junior board members, class representatives, and high school class officers, will meet on Thursday to complete plans.

Mrs. Pat Sullivan, outgoing president of the board, expressed her gratitude to the officers and other delegates for their cooperation in bringing the Harrisburg Youth Center to this community and expressed the feelings of the entire council in thanking all those who have aided in the promotion of this worthwhile project.

Begin Work to Prepare for Dial Telephones Here

Pole lines are being rebuilt and cable is being added and replaced in Dorris Heights and Wilmoth Addition by the General Telephone Co. of Illinois to provide facilities for dial service expected in about a year. Millard Lynch, Harrisburg exchange manager, announced today.

When this work is completed, workers will move into other areas of the city to prepare for the dial service.

Mr. Lynch said that urban telephone service will be extended into Dorris Heights and Wilmoth addition, with the completion of the dial facilities. Now the service is on county lines.

Mr. Lynch also stated that when telephone changes are made now, most of the new installations being made are dial-type telephones. Thus, when service is started, these places already will have the proper phones.

Navy Demon Jet Project Labeled $265 Million Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee claims the Navy's $265 million dollar investment in the F3H "Demon" jet fighter plane is a "total loss."

The Senate Preparedness subcommittee rejected the Navy's argument that eventual delivery of a successor plane made a success of the "ill-fated" project.

The subcommittee, headed by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), said Sunday the only return on the Navy's money has been "lessons learned"—including the lesson that the Navy must have "better sales resistance to backlog-minded manufacturers."

The subcommittee took a new swipe at the "disconcerting" F3H program in an official report. It had issued a previous report on the Navy's attempt to speed production of a fighter plane during the Korean War that would outperform the Communist MIG. The subcommittee said the Navy "may not be validly criticized" for its wartime decision to build an airframe before waiting for development of a "proven" engine to power it. But it added that there is no reason for the Navy to claim the program was a success.

The airframe was designed by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. To power it, the Navy first pinned its hopes on a Westinghouse jet engine. Then it shifted to a modified Westinghouse model. In March, a new model, powered by an Allison engine, finally joined the air fleet.

Some 60 airframes were built for the Westinghouse versions which had to be abandoned. Eight of the planes were wrecked, 14 of the airframes have engines but cannot be used for regular flights, and 38 will never fly at all, the report said.

The subcommittee noted that in the crashes four pilots were killed.

Sec'y Indicates Expansion of Defense Ties

Delivers Major
Policy Address
At ANPA Meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States is ready to join Western European democracies in "exploring the possibilities" of converting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization into a closer union of free nations.

In a major policy address to the American Newspaper Publishers Ass'n., Dulles said "the time has come to advance NATO" from its initial phase as a mutual defense pact "into the totality of its meaning."

Dulles did not spell out in detail his ideas on closer union. But he indicated that he was thinking in terms of greater economic and political cooperation.

He made clear, however, that the United States does not envision complete federation of the NATO powers, but rather a system in which each nation would preserve a considerable measure of independence in foreign affairs as well as in its domestic affairs.

"The historic weakness of the West has been its disunity," Dulles asserted in his speech before the annual Associated Press luncheon held in connection with the American Newspaper Publishers Ass'n. 70th annual convention.

"A major task of postwar statesmanship was to find ways whereby the West can maintain its solidarity. Much has been done. But more can still be done."

The peoples who make up the Atlantic community ought, in increased unity, to resume their greatness."

"The North Atlantic Treaty already serves as an indispensable and vital instrument of the Atlantic community. But the time has come to consider whether its organization does not need to be further developed, if it is adequately to serve the needs of this and coming generations."

"If that be the common desire of the NATO member nations, the United States will join eagerly in exploring the possibilities which now beckon us forward."

Recalls Marshall Plan
Dulles' invitation to European allies to more "advanced" collaboration recalled former Secretary of State George C. Marshall's historic Harvard speech inviting Europe to get together on a co-operative plan for postwar economic reconstruction with U. S. aid. The upshot of that speech was the Marshall Plan.

There seemed little doubt that Western Europe would greet Dulles' proposal with great interest. Many Western European nations have already been pressing for action to encourage more economic, political and cultural collaboration as well as purely military cooperation in NATO.

The treaty as it stands provides for cooperation in many fields other than military. But previously almost the entire emphasis has been on raising a defense force against possible Russian aggression.

Dulles' speech also was regarded as diplomatic overture as an administration reply to recent criticism by Adlai E. Stevenson and other Democrats that the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy has been bereft of bold new ideas to meet Russia's shift from open aggression to more subtle economic and political methods of penetration.

Sullivan Studies Contest; Chicago Story Says Absentee Voting Abused

Dale Sullivan is expected late tomorrow to give a decision on whether or not he will contest the result of the Republican Legislative primary in which canvassed results show he was beaten for nomination for Representative by C. L. McCormick of Vienna by 159 1/2 votes.

Sullivan's contest, if he decides to do it, will center in Johnson county, home of McCormick, where a Chicago Tribune reporter says "evident abuse of absentee voting privileges and an apparent breakdown in permanent voter registration" has been pointed up.

The writer, Johnson Kanady, spent last Friday in Vienna and Harrisburg and wrote two dispatches for the Tribune, the first a front page story out of Vienna carried in Sunday's newspaper and this morning a story datelined Harrisburg.

17 Per Cent Absentee Vote
In Kanady's Sunday story, he wrote:

"Poll lists in Johnson county are loaded with dead and otherwise departed, politicians admit. Applications for absentee ballots, more than half of which were voted 'in person' in the office of the county clerk, amounted to 17 per cent of the total vote cast in the county in the April 10 primary."

In his Monday article Kanady said 335 persons voted "in person" on absentee ballots in McCormick's office. (McCormick is the Johnson county clerk.)

"Poll lists there," he wrote, "investigation has shown, are loaded with dead people and persons who long ago have moved away."

He pointed out that in all, nearly 500 Republican absentee votes were counted in Johnson county out of a total of 2,665 GOP votes cast and mentioned that in Cook county the absentee vote amounts to about one per cent of the total.

Denies Supervising Voting
But back to the Sunday article out of Vienna, Kanady said one poll watcher revealed that even with the high percentage of absentee applications, his precinct had more absentee ballots turned in to be counted than showed on the applications on the master list for that precinct at the office of the county clerk.

He pointed out that the Johnson county GOP ballots were heavy with single-shots (three votes) for McCormick.

McCormick told the reporter he noted the applications for absentee ballots as they came to his office and wrote those who applied to inform them a one vote ballot for him meant three votes in the count.

But he denied to Kanady that he supervised the voting in his office by the 355 who took absentee ballots to vote in person, declaring he was out of the office most of the time campaigning. He said the absentee vote always was better than 10 per cent in Johnson county.

Kanady talked with John Veach, who challenged a number of votes in Simpson precinct of Johnson county.

Veach said that judges of Simpson precinct signed for 80 absentee ballots at the office of County Clerk McCormick. He said he allowed 40 absentee Republican votes to be cast without protest, along with 13 absentee Democratic votes.

Pass on Challenged Votes
At the same time, he said, he challenged 37 Republican absentee ballots—making a total of 90 absenteers, instead of the 80 shown on the records of the county clerk's office for that precinct.

McCormick said Simpson precinct watchers challenged 35 Republican absentee votes and two absentee votes, that the challenged ballots were laid aside.

Later, McCormick said, at the regular canvass in his office, judges were called into the court house to pass on the challenged votes and 26 Republican ballots were finally accepted. Veach said each of the 26 ballots gave McCormick, a member of the canvass board, three votes for representative.

Veach said his challenges ranged from persons who had moved from the precinct to persons who had moved out of the state, all still voting absentee.

He even challenged an absentee vote by his brother, who, he said, lives in a house trailer, works out of the state, but who visited him recently.

Believe Frost Damages Fruit Crop in Area

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Frost in many parts of southern Illinois may have damaged some of the area's 1956 fruit crop overnight.

Harold Hartley, of Carbondale, secretary of the Illinois Fruit Council, said it will be several days before the extent of damage is known.

Hartley said a low of 28 degrees was recorded near Carbondale during the night and there was heavy frost.

Most of the damage may be to the southern Illinois strawberry crop. Hartley said the crop was about 50 per cent in full bloom as far north as Centralia. He said these plants probably were hurt.

Southern Illinois apple orchards are in full bloom but frost damage to them will not be too great, Hartley said many of the growers would have to thin the heavy blossoms chemically and later thin out apples by hand if all the blossoms stayed on the trees.

Hartley said it may be a month before growers will know how much damage was done to the peach crop. Last year a severe freeze in March wiped out almost all of the southern peach crop.

Hartley said the petals are off many of the peach blossoms and the remainder of the blossoms protects the peaches. But he said repeated low temperatures could be bad for the peach crop.

The Truth Comes Out

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
We are accustomed to thinking of the Soviet Union as far outdistancing us in population. But recent Russian disclosures indicate that our disadvantage in numbers may be far less than we have imagined.

Up until now most reliable estimates have put Soviet population at from 220 million to 225 million. Fresh evidence makes it look as if the true figure were closer to 200 million.

If the latter total is approximately correct, there may be far-reaching reappraisals of Soviet potentialities both at home and abroad.

The big question, of course, is: How can any nation suddenly "lose" 20 to 25 million people? The answer is that Russia's losses during and after World War II have been both concealed and misjudged.

Most students of the Soviet Union have figured these losses at around 20 million—the result of military fatalities, war-cried civilian deaths, and sharply reduced birth totals.

It now appears the actual drop was closer to a staggering 40 million.

Some of this loss the Russians themselves may not have accurately catalogued. But there is good reason to believe, too, that they deliberately withheld important information.

They did not want to acknowledge the enormity of their wartime losses. They wished to capitalize propaganda-wise on the widely circulated notion that they were a nation of mammoth manpower.

Now either the Kremlin is preparing to dispel this fantasy, or it has made an unintentional slip. At the recent Communist party congress, a top official related current steel production to population by stating that output had increased 138 per cent on a per-person basis from 1940 to 1955.

Since Russia took an official census in 1939 and the 1940 total is easy to calculate, population specialists can translate the "per person" figure into a current estimate of Soviet numbers. That's how the downward-revised total of about 200 million was obtained.

Such a figure would give Russia an edge of around 35 million, or 22 per cent, over the United States with its 164 million people. Quite a difference from the 56 million, or 35 per cent, which would be the advantage if Soviet population was 220 million.

"I Tell You I Smell Something Burning"

NEA Service, Inc.

The Daily Washington
MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Dewey Is Still Chief Cabinet-Maker For Ike: He's Grooming His Friend, Elliott Bell, To Be Secretary Of The Treasury In Next Ike Administration: Cabinet Will Be Even More Powerful Next Term.

WASHINGTON — One interesting fact about the Dewey crowd is that they never give up. If they don't succeed the first time, they try again.

Witness the backstage maneuvering of the ex-governor of New York and his close friend, Elliott V. Bell, to put the latter in the next Eisenhower cabinet—if there is one.

Bell, now editor and publisher of Business Week, had one of the greatest disappointments of his life—second only to Dewey's—when Dewey found that he wasn't elected president in 1948. Bell had been the chief architect of the "don't rock the boat, play it safe, we are in, don't attack Truman" campaign strategy; and he has never forgiven himself for that error.

Burning in his breast has been the desire for vindication. He has seen other Dewey friends running the Ike administration—Brownell, Dulles, Mitchell, McKay, Nixon, all owing their jobs to Dewey—and Bell has wanted to be there too.

However, Eisenhower hasn't particularly cottoned to the economic genius who steered New York finances when Dewey was governor. So a quiet campaign has been started to maneuver Bell into a spot in the next Eisenhower cabinet—as secretary of the Treasury.

This was behind an inconspicuous press handout issued by the State Department announcing that "four prominent citizens have accepted the invitation of Secretary Dulles to serve as advisers" at the multilateral tariff conference in Geneva.

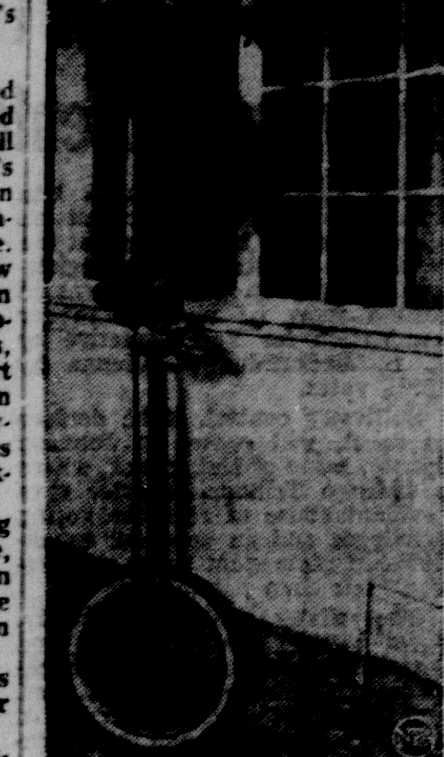

Heading the list, followed by quite a biographical buildup, was the name of Elliott V. Bell.

How CABINET IS PICKED
This announcement was by no means spontaneous. Quite a bit of maneuvering was behind it, including a meeting between Dewey, Bell, and Gabriel Hauge, the economic adviser to the White House. Hauge was told to line up an overseas assignment for Bell—something hard and without glamor so that a pitch could be made to Ike later that Bell had done his share and deserved a reward.

Hauge was told to help. He got busy. He used to work for Bell. John Foster Dulles was also told to line up a foreign assignment for Bell. Result: adviser on multilateral tariff problems in Geneva.

Meanwhile, to prepare for this campaign course to join the next Eisenhower cabinet, Bell brought an "associate publisher" in to handle Business Week—Bayer E. Sawyer. A special title was even created for him.

Thus, the cabinet buildup for Elliott V. Bell was duly launched. Dewey and Bell figure various cabinet changes will take place in Ike's second term. And Bell has told friends that the cabinet in the second Eisenhower administration will be even more powerful, since Ike will delegate more power than ever.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Meffenhacher, D. D.
Written for NEA Service

"God is very important to salesmen," says a man who is making a career of selling insurance. He goes on to explain that salesmen have days of high satisfaction. But they also have low periods of deep discouragement. During periods of discouragement some people try to drown their sorrows in drink. Others suffer from serious headaches.

A growing number of discouraged people are turning to God and are finding uplift in prayer. Some people think that such an idea is abstract, or unrealistic. Others will comment about the preacher's ethereal bypassing of down-to-earth facts.

Many there are who argue, who try to use mere logic, or who decry "the Pollyanna attitude." The scoffers and those who know it all have always been with us. They can say what they will. They can make light of prayer if they want to. The burden of proof is on the man who has never tried talking to God, or who has prayed to himself and not to God.

There is a way to test prayer and that way is to try it, not once, not twice, but until you can learn to listen.

The insurance man said, "When I started to sell, I prayed and I have never been too despondent to go on selling. Prayer works." Even if you are not a salesman you can try prayer.

In Appreciation

I Wish to Express My Appreciation Publicly for the Fine Work Our Harrisburg Fire Department Did Sunday Morning in Putting Out a Fire in My Garage Headquarters On Jackson Street. If It Were Not for the Quick Response and the Fine Work Done by Our Boys on the City Fire Department I Would Be Out of Business Today. Again I Wish to Thank the Fire Department for the Work It Did at My Place on Jackson Street.

Grace Recovers From Seasickness

POLLINSA, Malibu, Cal. — Princess Grace Kelly appeared today to have recovered fully from the seasickness that almost ruined her honeymoon.

She was radiant when she stepped ashore Sunday evening to attend a gala supper at the swank Formentor Hotel and drew gasps of admiration from a waiting crowd.

The visit ashore was her first since she and Prince Rainier sailed from Monaco last week on the royal yacht Deo Juvante for a lazy Mediterranean cruise.

Emphasizing the importance of river movement of coal, one mining company recently completed construction of a loading harbor on the Allegheny River big enough to handle more than a score of thousand-ton barges simultaneously.

Shepherdher Burns To Death in Trailer
Fire Near Oblong

OBLONG, Ill. (AP)—A shepherdher was burned to death in a fire in his house trailer north of here Sunday.

A coroner's jury ruled Sunday night that George C. Dalton, 52, died an accidental death.

The cause of the fire was uncertain but Crawford County Sheriff C. T. West said an overheated gas heater may have caused the blaze.

Two teen-age boys discovered the fire about 2 a. m. By the time Oblong firemen arrived, the top and sides of the trailer had collapsed. Dalton's body was recovered later.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Autherine Lucy Foster, who made headlines when she tried to break the racial barrier at the University of Alabama, headed for a week's secret honeymoon today in east Texas.

The controversial coed from Alabama and the Rev. Hugh Foster of Tyler, Tex., a Baptist preacher, were married Sunday amid whirling newsreel and television cameras and popping flashbulbs in a formal ceremony witnessed by about 700 persons.

The bride said she will continue her efforts to enter the University of Alabama next fall. An appeal of her expulsion from that school is pending in federal district court in Birmingham, Ala.

Shepherdher Burns To Death in Trailer
Fire Near Oblong

OBLONG, Ill. (AP)—A shepherdher was burned to death in a fire in his house trailer north of here Sunday.

A coroner's jury ruled Sunday night that George C. Dalton, 52, died an accidental death.

The cause of the fire was uncertain but Crawford County Sheriff C. T. West said an overheated gas heater may have caused the blaze.

Two teen-age boys discovered the fire about 2 a. m. By the time Oblong firemen arrived, the top and sides of the trailer had collapsed. Dalton's body was recovered later.

23 Traffic Deaths in State During Week End

The Daily Register 25c a week

By United Press

A head-on smash near the state capital city killed four persons today and climaxed a week end of motor accidents, some freakish but deadly, that killed 21 in Illinois. Three members of one Chicago family died in today's crash on Ill. 36 about three miles west of Springfield, and the fourth died in another car. The dead were Gregory Paglini, 34, Chicago, Carl Paglini, 47, and Jack Paglini, 60, and Henry Wilson, 26, Jacksonville. Winnebago County recorded its 15th and 16th traffic deaths of the year, twice as many as it had at the same time last year. Leo Collins, 27, of Sterling, was killed in a collision north of Rockford on Ill. 2 early Saturday morning. Edward Hench Jr., Rockford, was injured fatally Sunday when his car went out of control and overturned just south of Rockford. Hench was thrown out of the careening vehicle into a field. Hayward Gifford, 36, Mill Shoals, drowned Saturday night when his car overturned in a small stream near Mill Shoals, about 10 miles south of Fairfield. A companion, Ray Cable, 56, Mill Shoals, held his head above water until oilfield workers rescued him. Two freak accidents occurred in the Chicago area Sunday. A two-year-old boy tumbled off the front seat of an automobile. His body hit the accelerator, sending the car out of control and over a curb into a six-foot brick wall. The impact of the crash hurled bricks onto 9-year-old James Buchanan, crushing him to death. In nearby Barrington, Roland Bills, 57, was killed when a passenger train struck the rear end of an automobile, hurling the car against him. Bills, a crossing watchman for the North Western Railway, was thrown about 95 feet. The driver, Robert Johnson, 52, of Barrington, told police he did not see the warning signal.

Illinois Railroads

Ask Increase in Passenger Fare Rates

SPRINGFIELD — A group of 21 railroads operating in Illinois today petitioned the Illinois Commerce Commission for a 5 per cent passenger fare increase for intrastate operation. The railroads already have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a similar increase, and requested that it become effective May 1. The request is now pending before the ICC in Washington. The Illinois Commerce Commission announced a hearing would be held on the Illinois petition May 15 in Chicago.

ABC's
Investing
Your Surplus Income

You have enough life insurance and a good reserve of ready cash in a savings account. Now you're ready to invest your surplus income in the future of American business.

We suggest that you do this through a program of investment in shares of one or more Mutual Investment Companies. Through such companies you can obtain a pro-rata interest in a diversified list of up to 100 or more securities. No large sum is needed to start your program, which may be continued with additions of as little as $25 at a time.

HERE ARE THE ABC'S OF SUCH A PROGRAM:

A. Through a Mutual Investment Company, you share in the future of a broad cross-section of American business.

B. The securities held by Mutual Investment Companies are carefully selected and constantly supervised by professional investment managers.

C. Through use of fractional shares, all money you pay in, under a Mutual Investment Company Program for periodic investment, is completely invested. Accumulation may be further speeded by reinvestment of dividends, if desired.

D. You pay only the usual sales charge for buying shares of the investment company you select. You borrow no money, so you pay no interest. There are no "extras" or "penalties". You may discontinue the program, without charge, at any time.

E. Once your program is established, all further investments may be made by mail, direct to a Custodian Bank, if you wish.

Speedway Veteran Walt Faulkner Dies In Stock-Car Smashup In California

VALLEJO, Calif. (U-P) — Race officials said today Indianapolis speedway veteran Walt Faulkner died in a stock-car smashup because of his lead-foot and slender hips.

The 36-year-old speedster from Long Beach, Calif., was one of two drivers killed in separate California races Sunday. Three others were injured for one of the most disastrous week ends in California racing history.

In Knoxville, Tenn., William Harris, 23, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., was killed Sunday when a fan blade flew off his stock car and struck him in the head. The accident occurred as he was working on his car just before he was to enter a race.

Faulkner was half thrown out of the window of his 1956 Ford and crushed as the car rolled over five times before he had completed his first lap in time trials for the 100-lap National Championship Stock Car Race at the West Coast Speedway here.

Third Acting Police Chief Appointed by Cairo City Council

CAIRO, Ill. (U-P) — The third acting head of the police department since last fall was in office today.

The City Council appointed Frank Clifford acting chief at a special council meeting Saturday.

Clifford, who has been a special investigator for Cairo Mayor Paul Bauer, replaces acting Chief Enloe Jones.

Jones was suspended as police chief after an altercation with Police Commissioner John Scapino. The argument occurred after Scapino led a gambling raid on a carnival sponsored by the Cairo Auxiliary Police Department.

Jones, who replaced Police Chief Elmer Millikan when Millikan was fired last fall, was demoted to desk sergeant.

Clifford was fired from the Cairo police force last fall by Scapino on grounds that he "disrupted the police department."

Boy, 11, Kills Mother, Father, Brother in Revenge for Spankings

MANSFIELD, Conn. (U-P) — An 11-year old boy told psychiatrists today how he killed his mother, his father and his brother with a single-shot rifle in revenge for spankings.

Robert A. Curgenvin, who wears glasses because of defective vision in his right eye, wiped out the entire farm family Saturday with seven shots from a single-action .22 caliber rifle.

He ate a meal of frankfurters and beans and slept the night soundly before he confessed the slayings Sunday to a neighboring farmer.

"I planned this deal for a week," the boy told police. "My parents had spanked me. I planned to kill them."

Father a Farmer

Victims of the child's shooting spree were his father, Richard, 42, a dairy farmer contractor; his mother, Beatrice, 41, a nurse, and his brother, Richard Jr., 14.

The boy was questioned Sunday at state police barracks at near-by Stafford Springs. He was taken to Norwich Mental hospital for 30 days observation. A child under 16 cannot be tried for murder in Connecticut.

Robert told police he waited until they were all in different parts of the farm, "so they wouldn't gang up on me." He said he fired the shots from the rifle, reloading each time with a supply of bullets he carried in his teeth.

Mother in Bedroom

He shot his mother in the bedroom of their two-story, white clapboard farm house. He killed his father on the front lawn and his brother in the barn.

Police said the boy, who is four feet tall and weighs 75 pounds, told his story with hardly a trace of emotion.

"Things were all right until about

On Friday the 13th, Robert's father spanked him for refusing to put the light out in his bedroom, the boy said.

Fishing Good at Horseshoe, Little Grassy; Crab Orchard Improving

By Pete Brown

(Compiled from reports by the Southern Illinois University Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory and the Illinois Department of Conservation.)

Crappie movement at Horseshoe Lake, an increase of one to three pound largemouth catches at Lake Murphysboro and another week of comparative bliss for Little Grassy anglers during the past seven days.

Although census-taker described the weather as "cool, windy and cloudy" at Horseshoe, a number of fair crappie catches were brought in. The fish are running between eight and 14 inches, all of them being caught on minnows. A few yellow bass and warmouth are also showing up in the creels.

Warm weather infused some life into the largemouth tribe at Lake Murphysboro, with plugs and minnows showing about equal effectiveness. Scattered bluegill and crappie catches have also been recorded.

Good Catches at Grassy "Still very good" is the report from Little Grassy scouts, and for the first time this season a few are being caught on surface plugs. The Helldiver, Bomber and similar lures continue to prove most effective, however. Jim Kiefer of DeSoto boated five weighing from four to seven pounds; Pete Heider-scheit and Herb Bennett took four back to Mt. Vernon, the largest going six and one quarter; K. J. Caplan and Harold Yeager of St. Louis have joined the ranks of the believers after catching a seven and one-half pounder, and W. L. Sullivan, Steeleville, landed one weighing seven pounds. All used the Helldiver except the Mt. Vernon twosome. They caught theirs on the Paul Bunyan 66, Bomber and Lazy Ike.

Crappie have begun to bite at Little Grassy and a few bullheads are coming in. Crab Orchard Yielding Slowly but surely, Crab Orchard Lake is beginning to yield. An estimated 900 fishermen (and this is the roughest of estimates) flung a vast assortment of real and make-believe dietary goodies into the lake on the week-end of April 14-15, and the results, though scattered, were promising.

Big bass strikes are becoming more frequent and veteran Crab Orchard anglers who have refused to join the pilgrims bound for Little Grassy say it's a matter of time. Albert Peithmann of Carbondale matched his father's catch of a week ago with an eight and one-half pounder. He was fishing a Bassmaster on a spinning rig.

Nine to 12 inch crappie have begun to turn up in the catches and area fishermen are hoping that this season turns out more enjoyable than last year, when the crappie harvest was poor.

Diet for Bass The most predominant fish species in all of the 6,910 acres of Crab Orchard Lake is gizzard shad, a fact which might be lamented by some, but which actually is good from the bass fisherman's point of view.

Two years ago a study by the Southern Illinois University Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory revealed that where gizzard shad were present, they showed up in the stomachs of largemouth bass more frequently than any other food. At Crab Orchard Lake, the ratio was six to one over bluegill, the next most frequent food item found.

The results could mean that the bass ate gizzard shad because they were more available, more vulnerable, or more palatable than any other type of food.

Principal Fishes Last spring and summer SIU researchers conducted a similar study on Crab Orchard alone, and the results show an overwhelming occurrence of gizzard shad. The unpublished study further shows that Crab Orchard bass, whose principal food is apparently gizzard shad, exhibit above-average rate of growth.

Other principal fishes of the lake, in the order of abundance, are white crappie, carp, yellow bass, bluegill, largemouth, and buffalo. Drum and yellow bullhead also contribute to the "rough" population.

Designed to provide recreation, water supply and a migratory waterfowl refuge, the lake, located in Williamson county, was completed in 1940, and is the largest man-made body of water in Illinois. Its average depth is about 10 feet and maximum depth is 24 feet. The east-west lake is eight and one-half miles long and five miles wide at the widest point. Its 125 miles of shoreline provide plenty of cove fishing. It is controlled by the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge, which is in turn administered by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Management-wise, the Refuge staff is considerably more concerned about the fowl than the fish population within the area. However, two major management gambits have been employed.

Illinois Laws Govern One is a "drawdown," in which the water level is reduced from two to two and one-half feet. Planned for three year intervals, the last drawdown was conducted in 1955. The idea is to concentrate forage fish in deeper areas where the predaceous game fish (i.e., bass and crappie) can feed—and gain weight. Another possible benefit is the re-nourishing of shorelines through exposure and subsequent re-flooding, making for good bass and crappie spawning areas.

Second major measure was a concentrated bass planting program between 1953-55. A total of 1,788,000 fingerling bass were planted in the three years, and Refuge people look for the 1953 seedlings to start showing up in one to three pound bass catches this season.

Illinois laws govern fishing at this federal lake. Outdoorsmen can camp in the Refuge area for 30 days, but can't stay longer than two weeks in either the Little Grassy or Crab Orchard camping areas.

Yankee Sluggers Climax Three-Game Sweep of Boston Red Sox with 13-6 Rout

By United Press

Unless somebody can short-circuit their awesome slugging power and do it quick, the New York Yankees may "run away" with the American league pennant race the same way the Brooklyn Dodgers ran away in the National league last year.

That's the sad fact being forced on the rest of the American loop today by the Yankees' stunning three-game sweep of the Boston Red Sox during the week end, capped by a 13-6 rout on Sunday.

The "Bronx Bombers" now have won five of their first six; the Dodgers of 1955 won 20 of their first 22.

It could happen again, unless some good pitching can cool off the Yankee bats that, in three games against the Red Sox collected 34 runs on 33 hits, including seven homers, one triple, and five doubles. Look at these "big three" batting marks so far this season—Bill Skowron .542, Mickey Mantle .455, and Yogi Berra .400.

Commit Five Errors Sunday's series finale featured Yankee homers by Joe Collins, pitcher Don Larsen (a grand slam), and Berra, and the Sox made things worse by committing five errors. Still, Boston had a 6-6 tie until the seventh inning when the Yanks exploded their second four-run rally of the game, including a two-run double by Mantle and a two-run homer by Berra.

Bob Grim, allowing three hits in 4-13 innings in relief of Larsen, got credit for his first win while Frank Baumann, in relief of Frank Sullivan, was tagged with the loss.

After an idle day today, the Yanks get a chance to fatten their record further in three games against Washington and Baltimore before visiting Boston for another test.

The second-place Chicago White Sox stayed a half-game behind the Yankees Sunday by whipping Kansas City, 3-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Billy Pierce. The little lefty fanned seven, walked only three, in gaining his second win. Alex Kellner matched Pierce in a scoreless duel until the eighth while Nellie Fox' homer led a break-through.

Two American league twin bills resulted in splits at Cleveland, Detroit, whacked four homers, including two by Al Kaline, to beat the Tribe in the opener 5-2, before Bob Lemon scattered nine hits to win the nightcap, 6-4, for his first complete game since May 30 of last season. At Baltimore, rookie southpaw Fred Besana of the Orioles gained credit for a 7-3

Eldorado won two of the relay events. The Eagles copped the two mile relay with Frank Willis, Leonard Willis, Roscoe Woods and Bob Watson each running a half mile. Then they won the distance medley, with Jack Klafer running the 440, Leonard Willis the 880, Lester Feauquay the 220 and Bob Watson the mile.

The Eagles got fifth in the freshman relay with David Reeves, Philip Brown, Bob Watson (another Bob Watson, a freshman) and Chuck McCallister running. Lindell Lovellette was second in the shot with 51-10, second in the discus with 143-3 and fourth in the heavyweight 100.

The results: Shot put: Jones, E. St. Louis; Lovellette, Eldorado; Hamilton, Herrin; Fredette, Benton; Beal, Harrisburg, 52-2 1/2.

The Angry Hills

THE STORY: Mike Morrison, an American caught by the German invasion of Greece in 1941, has information for British Intelligence. The Nazis know Mike has this information and although the American has eluded them so far, they are busy tracking him down. Mike has taken refuge with a family in northern Greece, but is anxious to contact the underground in Athens.

CHRISTOS' bald head and waxed mustache shone in the candlelight. He held his hands to his heart.

"Jay, I love you like a son, you should not leave."
"Be sensible, Christos. Another day—another two days—the Germans will burn Paleachora to the ground."

Christos spat on the floor and issued an oath against the Germans. Even if you are gone we will never turn our backs on the Englezos... No! I will not let you leave!"

Despite Christos' shady dealings, he was a Greek to the core. "I have five million drachmas—take it," Mike said.

Christos grumbled under his breath. "Five million drachmas—50 million drachmas. You would think all Christos wants is money. If I had all the money I could carry in my boat, I could not buy a bag of wheat with it. I would give you my boat but it isn't fit to cross the sea. Besides, within one hour a patrol ship would find you... Besides, I do not know the lanes over the mine fields... Besides...
"I'm not asking you to take me to North Africa. I only want to get to Athens—immediately."

Christos lit his huge bowler pipe. He stared at Mike calmly and spoke without the usual breast thumpings.
"My niece, Eleftheria, is a nice healthy girl, no?"
Mike grinned to himself. Now, at last, Christos would play out his hand. He agreed that Eleftheria was as healthy as a horse. "You know, Jay, it is a custom in our country for a suitor to come to the father with a ring and the two to enter into a contract. I speak to you as her guardian. I have a plot of land in Dernica, fine land, where my aged mother lives. I have a sizeable dowry for Eleftheria. If you were to return as her husband..."

Mike shook his head. "I am married and I have two children."

Christos arose and clasped his hands behind him.
"Jay, my good friend, I tell you something. From the minute I take you on my boat in Nauplion, I say to myself, here is a man. I am now rich, although you may not agree with things I do. But every man wants this for his son. Melpo has not given me a son... Jay, I would like very much..."

"I don't love her," Mike said.
"Bah! What are you talking about? She will have your children, she will make cloth for you, she will scrub your feet. Why you need love? You Englezos are all crazy!"

Mike shook his head. Christos knew further argument was useless. With a look of hurt and sadness, he sighed and started from the room. "Very well. We sail for Athens at sunrise tomorrow."

"JAY! Wake up!" Mike rolled over and propped himself on an elbow. Christos, in a long night-shirt and cap, with a candle in hand, stood over the bed.

"Eh—what's up?" Mike mumbled, half-asleep.
"A signal from the next village. German soldiers all over the area. They're heading for Paleachora."

Mike threw off the covers. "Go to the church, quickly!" Christos said.

Mike struggled into his clothes, checked his pistols and bolted through the door and worked his way toward the knoll. He sprinted through the door of the Church of the Prophet Elias.

Bluey was already there with three other escapees. They were half-dressed and crouched near the windows, shivering in the night air. Bluey's fists clenched a long rifle.

"I say we break for it now," Bluey whispered.

"Do what you please," Mike said. "I'm riding it out."

He sank into a sitting position with his back against the wall and rubbed his eyes. The empty church looked eerie in the flickering light of the candles burning at the altar at the opposite end.

BLUEY grabbed Mike's shoulders and pointed out of the window. Mike's heart pounded as he heard dim, angry guttural commands drift up from the village. It was pitch black, impossible to see anything—only the sounds...
Drowsy Greek voices—curt commands in German...

Sounds of motors, trucks rolling into the village. A rifle shot!

Angry Greek voices! More rifle shots! The loud wailing of a woman. Mike could swear it was Melpo.

A form—a shadow outside... Mike pointed and Bluey nodded in agreement as he lowered his rifle.

The shadow moved unevenly up the path toward the church. The five men cowered against the wall, their weapons turned on the door. It burst open.

"Eleftheria!"
She stood there gasping, dressed only in a skirt and blouse thrown on hastily. Mike saw her face by the candlelight—twisted in horror. She was unable to speak.

"Christos," he said. He tore the rifle from Bluey's hands and ran for the door. The four other men pounced on him and wrestled him to the floor.

Girl, 8, Doomed By Rare Disease

DETROIT 17—Doctors said today an 8-year-old girl is doomed by a rare disease which slowly is shrinking the muscles of her body.

The chances of little Karen Dicho surviving the disease—dermatomyositis—are "all but hopeless." More than 200 specialists examined the girl at a convention here recently and agreed to that verdict.

They said there are only 103 such cases recorded in medical history in the United States, and there is no known cure for the disease because its cause has not yet been learned.

Karen's parents, Morris and Delores Dicho of Dearborn, have not given up hope for their daughter's recovery. They defy science with prayers in hopes their cheerful, blue-eyed daughter may again run and play as she did only last November.

"We've heard and read about miracles taking place at the Shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre in Quebec," Mrs. Dicho said. "We will take Karen there in July and pray that such a miracle will help her."

Karen, who is confined to a wheelchair or a bed, busies herself by making costume jewelry or small rugs. The work is designed to loosen shrinking muscles which doctors say eventually will cause paralysis and death.
